Land Acknowledgement:

The University of Guelph (and our classroom) are located on the traditional lands of the Attawandaron people, and the treaty lands of the Mississaugas of the Credit. I also acknowledge the presence of other First Nations, Métis, and Inuit neighbours on this land. As a scholar in and of this place, I believe it is important for us to learn about and respect the relationship of Indigenous peoples to this land.

Course Description:

Undergraduate Calendar description: “Students will implement a community engagement project determined in consultation with a community partner. The focus of engagement opportunities will be on the analysis of a development issue and defining related policy and/or practice options. The course explores the challenges associated with engaging with development practitioners and equips students with the necessary skills for successful engagement.”

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Identify and analyze development issues, challenges and priorities for development practitioners and community stakeholders.
2. Understand and reflect critically on the perspectives of development practitioners and stakeholders with respect to development priorities, challenges, related policies and practices.
3. Ability to undertake analysis of development issues and real-world challenges in the context of the needs and priorities of development practitioners and community stakeholders.
4. Effectively communicate with development practitioners and stakeholders through written and oral forms.

Evaluation:

A document detailing the course assignments and evaluation guidelines will be posted on Courselink.

Readings:

Readings will be available via the Library’s Ares online course reserve system.
